DLW receives IRIS certificate

PIONEER NEWS SERVICE ■ VARANASI

Diesel Locomotive Works (DLW) has received the certificate of International Railway Industry Standard (IRIS) from Unife, an important institution of European standard. This certificate is ISO / TS 22163: 2017, the latest standard of International Standards Organisation (ISO). DLW is the first production unit of India's rail locomotives to receive this certificate.

The demand for electric locomotives in addition to quality diesel will increase in the international market for DLW. To meet the criteria of this certificate, ten standards need to be met and the DLW has succeeded in accomplishing in record time. In order to monitor the quality of the railway, Unife appointed DNV Certification in the Netherlands to monitor its quality, which found DLW worthy of this achievement with 75% marks after auditing for seven consecutive days in DLW and recommended Unife for this. It is to be noted that this certificate is received for design, development and manufacturing activities for rolling stock of railway locomotives.
